COURT RECORD.

Common Pleas Court—Criminal Side—

Judge Hotchkiss.

In this court late yesterday afternoon John McQueney was found guilty of violation of the Sunday liquor law and was fined $100 and costs and sent to jail for sixty days. McQueney was formerly a saloonkeeper on Congress avenue and one of the most persistent violators of the liquor law. He has been fined several times in the city court. The time he was arrested he was given a jail sentence, from which he appealed to the common pleas court, with the above result.

Morris Herrman, who was charged with keeping a disorderly house at the corner of Church and Crown streets, was acquitted by the jury yesterday.

City Court—Criminal Side—Judge Callahan.

William Kennedy, burglar, continued to April 1; Rebecca Sheehan, drunkenness, nolle.

THE SEYMOUR SCHOOL CASE.

When the superior court adjourned yesterday afternoon a dense crowd of Seymour people poured out of the court building into Church street, surprising the natives and causing many inquiries as to the occasion which has brought so many out of town folks here. Seymour was certainly well represented at the whipping case, including the fair sex.

The case is that in which Edgar C. Stiles of the Seymour high school is defendant, as hitherto mentioned. He is charged with giving one slap on a boy's face, having caused that boy great and permanent injury. The plaintiff is Martin A. Holden of Seymour, who was a pupil in room 6 in Mr. Stiles' school. One thousand dollars damages are claimed for the slap.

The defense began yesterday and the first witness was Grand Juror Buckley of Seymour. He testified that Martin A. Holden, the boy, came into his store two days after the slapping took place, "swearing as usual," according to the language of the witness. Mr. Buckley being a grand juror and wanting to make a dollar or two whenever he could legitimately looked at the boy's face to see if he had been badly hurt. He saw no marks, he said, about the face or eye, and therefore found no ground for a prosecution.

Frank H. Cooper, a clerk in a drug store in Seymour, testified that he saw Holden a few days after he was punished, and at that time his face was not swollen or discolored, as the boy claimed that it was.

The defendant has a large number of witnesses who will testify to his good character and forbearance with unruly scholars and also about the Holden boy's condition after he was whipped.

THE WHITTEN CASE.

Attorney Penney of this city, who is counsel for Dr. Whitten, said yesterday morning he had heard nothing yet about Governor Coffin's decision. He was of the opinion that his client would have to stand trial, and he is busy looking up evidence for his side of the case at present.

CONTEST OVER A WILL.

The will of Patrick Tierman, who died a few weeks ago at his home, 118 Day street, is to be contested by his daughter, Mary Cleary of 104 Day street. The estate is valued at $5,000. The will bequeathed two-thirds of the property to Anne, an unmarried daughter, and one-third to two sons.

Mrs. Cleary was disinherited. Attorney Clerk, her counsel, will take the case to the superior court. He will allege that undue influence was used on the testator.

HIS PONDAM SETTLES.

Max Rosenthal, who was surety on the $500 bond which Nicholas S. Spielberg, the Russian law student, forfeited, has settled with City Attorney Fox, paying a sufficient amount to cover all the costs in the proceedings.

William O'Keefe, Jr., was appointed trustee on the estate of William A. Taylor in the place of Joseph E. Taylor. William A. Taylor became insolvent some time ago and Joseph E. Taylor was appointed trustee of the estate.

Upon application of the creditors Trustee Taylor was removed, and Mr. O'Keefe was appointed at the request of Attorney R. H. Tyner, counsel for the creditors.

German in Five Weeks!

There are doubtless scores of people in this city who feel the need of a speaking knowledge of the German language, but who have been discouraged about learning it by the old and tedious grammar system. All such people will rejoice to know that Prof. Colby is about to open a course here, and that he will guarantee a practical speaking and reading knowledge of German in five weeks. Furthermore, his system requires no study outside the classes, and only one hour per day in the classes. His terms are very reasonable, and in case he does not fulfill his promise no charge will be made. Certainly no one can complain of this. His opening lectures will be free, and will be given in Veru hall at 4:30 and 8 p. m. on Friday next.

EAT TOBACCO NO MORE.

James Larrabee's Wonderful Experience

Alarms the Whole Country About.

[From the New London Day.]

A Ledyard correspondent gives additional particulars about the champion tobacco chewer of Connecticut, who lives in that town. At least he was champion, for he has just had to retire, knocked out below the belt by the weed.

The man's name was James Larrabee. He is between fifty and sixty years old and lives in a wild and isolated region, six feet tall in his cowhide boots, lank, gaunt and sinewy, and until a year or more ago was as robust, vigorous and tough physically as any white oak of his native hills. All his life he had been a persistent "chawer" and smoker; at least he began the practice of chewing when a school-boy, only twelve years, and has chewed uninterruptedly ever since.

In respect of his tobacco habit he was the bright and shining "horrible example" of his town. He chewed all the time, not less than sixteen hours each day, and in the last year or so he frequently got out of bed once or twice—sometimes oftener—in the night, and, seated on the bedside, he took a hunk of plug and chewed.

HE ATE TOBACCO.

He arose regularly at the first streak of dawn, and always the first chore to be performed, even before lighting the kitchen fire, was to bite off a liberal slab of tobacco. Oftener than otherwise he swallowed the juice. His reputation as a master hand at chewing was recognized in two or three other adjacent towns, and while there is no end of capable chewers both in North Stonington and Gorton, "hired men" as well as farmers and teamsters, yet not one accounted himself a rival of Larrabee.

Mr. Larrabee used plug and fine cut so rapidly that in the last five years he has been purchasing his tobacco supply in wholesale quantities and at wholesale prices, so that the grocers of North Stonington and Gorton hamlets were wont to make special tobacco purchases to meet the single Larrabee demand. He bought whole caddies of plug whenever he drove to market, and once or twice in "hay" time, his supply having fallen short, he quitted the hay field in the face of an approaching thunder storm and drove to the "Centre" to lay in a fresh stock.

WHEN LARRABEE BEGAN TO FAIL.

Mr. Larrabee's health suddenly and unaccountably began to fall about six or eight months ago; soon he became weak, emaciated, cadaverous; he was lackadaisical and melancholy; he pined and drooped; he was troubled with a strange lassitude and dejectedness—what is eloquently and tersely termed "lowness" in the ancient town of Ledyard.

He told his neighbors that he couldn't "guess" what "on earth" oppressed him, unless "twas the grip or autism" like it, and neither could they "make out" the nature of his complaint any better than he. They "guessed" that, that maybe, "was gum" inter a decline. It never occurred to one of them or even to himself for a moment that his lifelong habit of eating plug tobacco was the cause of his ailment.

So Mr. Larrabee, having finally become alarmed about himself, called in the Center Gorton doctor one day, and asked him if he could make out what was the trouble with him.

"Yes," responded that learned gentleman, "yes, I can tell you what's the matter. You've the very worst kind of a 'tobacco heart'; it is all running down and you won't live more than about six months unless you let up. Your heart has slowed down to thirty-two beats to the minute, and, let me tell you, it can't slip up much more without you going with it."

Mr. Larrabee switched off to chewing gum and slippery elm and immediately began to pick up in health with amazing rapidity. It was about two months ago that he abandoned the tobacco habit and to-day he is as strong, hale and hearty as any man in New London county. He chews gum and slippery elm instead and pretty nearly all the time at that.

It is interesting in connection with Larrabee's reformation, that about half the other tobacco eaters of his town have taken alarm on account of his wonderful experience and have forsaken the habit also. At least every other farmer and hired man of the town is now chewing gum or slippery elm. It agrees with them, they say.

PLYMOUTH CENTENNIAL.

Anniversary of the Organization of the Town to be fittingly Celebrated.

The centennial anniversary of the organization of the town of Plymouth will be fittingly celebrated May 11.

There will be a public meeting in the Congregational church, at which there will be music of an appropriate character rendered by local talent and literary exercises. The orator of the evening will be Judge H. B. Bradstreet of Thomaston, who will deliver an historical address.

The following day there will be another meeting in the town hall at Tarryville, when Judge Augustus H. Penn will be the orator of the day. He is a native of the town of Plymouth and will give a descriptive historical address. A loan exhibition will be the principal feature of this demonstration.

Francis A. Wadsworth of Meriden, a native of Plymouth, will publish a souvenir history and will present the towns with one thousand copies gratis. The work will contain a history of Plymouth from its first discovery, two hundred and thirty-eight years ago, until the present day. It will be profusely illustrated, in every way a work of art.

A Terror.—Bullets—Don't you think your sister will be awfully sorry to marry and leave a nice little boy like you? The Pet—Yes. She said she'd got married a dozen times over if it hadn't been for me.—Smith, Gray & Co.'s Monthly.

She (after the unmasking)—I see that strawberries are on the bill of fare. George. He (nervously)—Yes, but they are very sour at this season of the year. She—Of course, but I think I will take a few. One cannot expect strawberries to be at their best in March, you know.—Harlem Life.

THE INSANE HOSPITAL ADDITION.

It Will Accommodate Two Hundred and Fifty Patients and Will Soon be Furnished.

The building committee of the insane hospital at Middletown has accepted the new addition to the hospital that was built the past season. The cost of the building complete was between ninety and one hundred thousand dollars. It is said to be the cheapest hospital building erected in this country, counting the number of patients to be accommodated. It will accommodate two hundred and fifty patients, which is less than four hundred dollars a patient. It is usual to allow about five hundred dollars a patient in planning for such hospitals.

The building is three hundred and sixteen feet long and from thirty to fifty feet wide, three stories in height, of brick with terra cotta trimmings and slate roof. It is of the slow burning construction plan, the partitions being all of brick, and the floors of thick plank, having no openings or flues to create a draft in case of fire.

PERSONAL JOTTINGS.

Now in Africa—Gift From the Old Country—Very Ill—Warner Found in North Haven—On His Travels.

Prof. and Mrs. George J. Brush of Trumbull street are now in Africa near the Desert of Sahara.

R. T. Watson-Gallaher, of the Connecticut Associated Press, received a large root of shamrock by mail from friends in the old country yesterday.

Burton H. Warner, who escaped from the Connecticut hospital for the insane at Middletown on January 5 last, was arrested at his home in North Haven yesterday morning and brought to the lockup here to await the arrival of officers from Middletown, who took him back to the asylum yesterday. Warner was committed to the insane retreat by Judge Wheeler in the superior court. He was previously convicted of theft of a bicycle which he rode out into New York state. He sold the wheel there and returned home, where he was arrested. Convicted in the city court, he pleaded insanity and was committed to the insane retreat. He effected his escape by making a rope of his bed clothes. If it is found that he has been feigning insanity his case will come before the prosecuting authorities for their consideration.

George Bohn, superintendent of construction of the new post office annex, yesterday turned his accounts over to J. Mace Winchell, custodian of the building, his term having expired. The work on the building is suspended for the present. Contractor Driscoll is seriously sick at his home in Washington, D. C. There is about one more week's work necessary to complete the improvements.

Richard T. Moore, brother of Officer Richard T. Moore, is every low with lung trouble at his home, corner of Canal and Webster streets. He has been sick about five months.

Dr. and Mrs. Hawkes on their trip to South America, whence they have just returned, visited fourteen islands during their absence, including the Bermudas, Cuba, Jamaica, Trinidad, also South America, and were, when the American vessel Alliance was fired upon, only a few miles away. They did not, however, know of the excitement caused by the act, or of
